

Thanks to the strength of numbers presented at the council chambers during the city council meeting on 3/18, the city listened and wants to help.

The city will contact the Northshore School District to arrange a meeting with council members, school board members and, perhaps SOS members to discuss this situation and to open up lines of communication that has been blocked since the announcement of the proposal on February 12th.

The city council turned the meeting into an open forum with comments and questions presented from residents and the city council, along with the manager & city attorney interacting with us. We were told this isn't something that usually happens.

We are now drafting an agenda with key topics to be discussed during this meeting.

We want to say THANK you for making it to the meeting Tuesday evening. Because of you there, the city listened and now wants to help.
